Ishan Tarunesh : Yo Golu ! We have been together in so many things - WnCC, ICPC, DAMP, TAship, Projects etc. I really cherish the walks back from acad area or tennis court to H2. Wing ke discussions were indeed the best times. I admire the clarity which you bring in the conversation whenever discussing about anything. I've personally learnt a lot from your work ethics and views - particularly when we discussed careers, finding a balance in life etc. Your drive to be better in every aspect of life is immense. It is no doubt that you'll do wonderful in whichever direction you would want to mould you life towards. If there were few lines to describe what the future has in store for you these would be it -

Nirbhay Wadiwala : Bhai sahaab I never thought I'd be writing in your yearbook but what a turnarond 2020 has been ... From our trek to the hyderabad trip to the Lonavala mornings substituting for goa . Its been amazing to have you as a friend. Stay in touch :)

Kumar Saurav : I still wonder how you managed to study so much, even though you've said you don't want pursue studies further - is that a pure Gujarati business mentality there? Absolute respect though. That Yosemite trip turned out to be great for all of us, and I especially remember those last few switchbacks and the caffeine-laden trip back - the whole trip was such a series of impromptu arrangements! And those wide ranging wing discussions - so refreshing. I was so surprised that you took up such a regular exercising habit; all that remained was those 2 points in the Crossy. Well, loads of money to be made now and I'll wager you'll be among the first millionaires that I know.

Amey Patil : Golu sir! I have never met anyone as a hardworking, motivated, self-conscious person like you! I remember once saying "knowing your own abilities, dreams, and most importantly matching them with reality is living in a paradise" and you live in it with your best efforts! Only thing I can happily say is that you got 9 in Mech workshop and I got 10, idk how! xD. I believe that College life is not only about academics, accomplishments and good or bad memories, it's about how we get our personality and ideologies from those experiences which we are going to nurture for the rest of our lives! And I'll always be glad that our paths crossed in the most amazing time of my life!

Kumar Saunack : When you're in the US, remember my US joke. It's very wholesome :p That apart, I've never understood how you maintain the drive to do all the things you do.
For that art installation, you could've helped in creating it, instead of laughing, you know? Would've saved us time and you'd have been a co-creator in that masterpiece.
Btw, when you go to the US, please don't start rolling your R's.

Nishant Jannu : Remember that time we drove around the sea-link 2-3 times, windows down and playing paint it red - It was so satisfying. Only mins later I ruined it for you when I saw a hot chick in the other car and you got so annoyed that I didn't tell you in time and you missed her. That treasure hunt we did clicking pics with non-brown shits (was she?) and putting on Maansi's lipstick and breaking it -we were so comfortable doing stupid shit around each other all the time. We did give a gap to all the madness for a while- but bringing it back at 11,000 ft, freezing to death was worth it in the end. Sucks that I missed your 'Imaginary' fight, but I'm sure we'll share many more laughable memories together

Archiki Prasad : Sahil Hiral Shah (aka Poop). Well, as I promised no senti. I remember how I once told you if we (and everything) were a course what grade I would give 'yu'. I am now pleased to inform yu, I can give yu an S after all (jk I'd give an AA, yu have a way of landing those and anything lesser is ofc unacceptable). Anyway, I'm sorry you could not go to Bazzinga (that maths quiz remember), ig both yu and your resume turned out fine! I brought this up to remind yu that in the end things work out for themselves and often for the better. So CHILL, just keep putting in your best effort like you always do (don't change that). Baaki toh I'm there to haunt yu constantly <3.

Kumar Ashutosh : Yo Sahil! There's no doubt you are one of the smartest person I have ever met. Our WnCC tenure was good and eventful, thanks to our managers. Had so much good interactions with you on several occasions. It was good to see you running every evening in the gymkhana ground. We had a lot more interesting discussion this semester while working on our course project. It was fun coming up with newer and newer LBs. I believe we had a very good end to our hard work. Your work ethics is also impressive. We decide on a task and you get it done in no time. Thanks and best of luck!!

Shourya Pandey : Ah, the man of culture. From the day we met outside the convo to now, we have come a long way. I will miss our dinners and drinks. I will miss our road trips. But I cherish the most is our morning walks where we used to rant about the teacher or the weather or the coudung everywhere. I will miss burning Jadhav's birthday thing 🤔🤔 Thanks for all the fun I had in the insti and outside. Thank you for listening to my rant about some obscure theorem you were uninterested in. Thank you for your support even if things weren't going my way. I know I have a true friend whom I can always rely on, and a true friend who can always trust me.

Sahil Saiyad : So this happened in early 6th sem when I still had not landed any intern. I was having my lunch in mess and this dude comes and sits on the opposite chair and starts talking. He makes small talk with me for 5-10 minutes and then asks where I was going to do my summer intern. I told him I still didn't have one. He asked me don't they recruit you just by seeing your DR on your resume. Hahaha. I have never been treated with such respect by a completely random stranger before in my life. I hope you keep slaying dragons in your field until you get too old to slay. After that slay them bitches.

Aadarsh Pratik : Man...what a ride college has been. I can still remember our conversations on the first day sitting in the canteen.(and more conversations in the canteen later that day haha.) As crazy as college has been, some of my best memories here are just chilling with u and our group on the H15 terrace. This last sem was just the best man, trekking, cooking(lol) and finally succeeding in losing some weight haha. And don't worry, Europe kya, pura duniya ghumenge.Stay in touch likhne ka zarurat nahi..I know we will.(If things work out...New York mai party next year hahah)
