Amarjyoti Nayak : Well, on the day of admission we both were sitting together in the convocation hall. Although, we were unknown to each other, you were the first ones to interact and make me feel less lonely in the vast ocean of unknown faces. You offered me bananas and water and I probably denied. You were also amazed at the briefcase I was having. Later on, we became wingies. And I liked your sincerity towards health as you became a regular-going guy. Also, I liked your speed and frankness during talking. It was sometimes humorous for me but I admired. I wish you the best body and the best life ahead.
