Ganesh Chelluboyina : Yo Goru! Just can't imagine living the insti years without you. From studying linear algebra and bio at library together, to debating the pros and cons of travelling home before lockdown, we've had quite a long journey in insti together. We would force each other to go running everyday but still get fatter (credits to all the canteen food you'd bring!). I'm really impressed with the way you pulled yourself through the third year and came out a winner. Thanks for being my companion through everything. Ab Japan jaake ML machana!

Prakriti Mehta : Hey Ritesh! Playing TT was always fun with you. Thanks for teaching us an awesome game. Kaafi achhe aur cute insaan hain ye. Wish I had some more memories to write...Hoping to meet you post lockdown. :)

Sreeraj S J : Yo, kitne paper publish kiya. Life mein aur bhi hota hai. Track down the girl from the wedding (So that it may really be a story to share 😊). All the best and thank you

R Nambilakshmi : Heyyyyy GoruBoy, The fact that you'll be graduating hasn't sunk through yet :'). I'll still remember you as a sophomore who tried his best to captain a freshie team older than him :P. Jokes apart, you've been a wonderful mentor and friend. I still remember how you were more invested in my branch change than me :). And also all the times when you helped me during the internship season, even when I was at my lowest. All these years, you have been a great source of strength. The way you bounced back after third year. Hats off!!!. Btw, for the record, too many treats pending :P. Good luck Goru!!!

R Sucheta : Heyooo, I still can't digest the fact that I gave that dreadful Optimization exam XDD Thanks for transcribing his notes and teaching me the day before exam :D Baaki toh you are a very helpful and sweet guy, all the career discussions we had were so insightful. All the best for Japan and haan, me pareshaan karne wali hu :P

Atharva Jaipurkar : Goru boi! ASME me electrical tune hi sambhala! It was fun to work with you man! What a team it was! You were ig the most naive person in the team, tera woh late night I am coming wala group pe message kabhi nahi bhil sakta mai😂 JPMC talk was also quite an experience! Aise hi machate rehna life me! Enjoy karna mastt Japan me, you have earned it♥ Take Care bro!

Animesh Singh : Ritesh Bro ... One of my reference book for anime ... Bhai the number of anime you watched during those two months are what I am trying to break nowadays xD... Your laziness in making dinner was really annoying :P ... But the trip was memorable because of everyone ... And the shopping trips to walmart ... OMG ... The way people looked at us was really embarrassing... All the best and keep smiling as your smile is way more contagious than any virus :)

Gaikwad Mayur Vinayak : Goru Boi!!! I guess we met through UMIC and also got a chance to work together(infi fun). Really enjoyed the time we were assigning short names to the group. Also remember someone almost broke something while playing (you know where:-)). See you soon :-) Trishant Roy : Goru sama! Remember that in the beginning I referred to you as "sensei" and you as "sama" to me? XD. The time spent with you has been really memorable. It was really fun working with you during ASME and internship apping. Your simplicity and down to earth nature is parallel to none. You were always there to solve my doubts related to electronics during the summer project and IARC. Thank you for your anime recommendations! Best of luck for your future :)

Kaushal Kishore : Yo bro!! 'which minor and elective courses are you taking?' a common question we asked each other every semester.. LOL. It's been really great working with you and learning from you at UMIC. I truly appreciate your dedication and thirst to explore and learn, I remember the timescale on your google homepage. I appreciate that you eventually got over your tough times. Keep learning and keep growing! Take Care!!:)

Aakash Kapoor : By far one of the coolest neighbours a person can ever have. I'm gonna remember the loads of hours talking to you, working on projects and generally having fun. You're a really cool and fun guy. Also, thanks for Death Note! All the best to you bro, you'll do great. We'll keep in touch for sure :)

Rahul chunduru : Hey Goru-kun! you are one of the finest research enthusiasts I know in the insti. Also, a fellow otaku. (^w^). You were quite serious when I said, it would be nice if I won the department TT tournament. you were even about to set training slots for me.. But I appreciate your sincerity n passion. Your kettle was very helpful, thanks for that too. The strategic TT matches were very good. your spin keeps me guessing lol. The line-follower was a good try too. Yeah, I love watching anime with you, you crack up too often, that's funny. pity, we couldn't do that often after 1st year. Garden of words was good watching second time. All the best in your future and let's keep in touch. (~w~).

Dipesh Hemchandra Tamboli : Are Goru Bhai, From IRC(oh! I forgot that you were my XLR8 mentor too ;) to submitting our paper in BMVC/ICIP, we were together in many things. You were always there as my consultant for advising me on how to tackle the semester, how to study for any specific course, how to prepare a Maggy in a kettle, how to eat Mishti Dahi with some random snacks. We spend a summer together as roommates planning from RISE work to going to swimming, jogging, Gym and what not. We used to talk for nights discussing different things(random things). Vo apka shadi wala kissa, I can't forget that. I remember you were counting the days left in IIT Bombay and now it's hard to believe that count is over. But yes,

Nishit Nagar : Yo Goru, had an amazing 1.5 year with you. Will always remember your broken funny Hindi, our TT games, sleepless nights making the bot. You are such a hard working person and were such an important part of the team. Hope you are taking better care of your phone after infamous I am coming message. Lets have a ASME meet again :)
