Raghav Goyal : Yo Avani! <3 I regret that we started hanging out only in the last semester! but i guess better late than never? ;) You are an amazing person really! you're sweet and you care, and you give gyaan :p and honestly everything you've said has always made sense to me! :) Thank you for hearing me out in tough times and for keeping me motivated all throughout! I love how creative you are and how much hardwork you put into things that actually matter! I'll always remember the hostel food wala case :p haha! and the "xxxxxxx" day :p where you forgot your retainer :p Stay in touch! shlok bhejte rhio ;) looking forward to sharing a bowl of tomato soup ;)

Archiki Prasad : Hey Pavani! One of the few things I would tell my freshie-year self is that be nice to your roommate, it'll go a long way. From absolutely despising each other, we moved on to become acquaintances and finally great friends. It was a slow transition, but I do not repent any part of it. Be it lowering the speed of my fan in the middle of the night or spot that I was crying just by looking at my nose, you have put up with my nonsense every step of the way (if not encouraged it further!). You have handled my mess literally (XD) and figuratively and made it yours too and I am grateful for that. I can't imagine we almost changed roommates but looking back I would not have it any other way.

Tanya Gupta : Avani bro! From our mutual love to basketball (and all the bitching that was involved), you telling me about your how everything in your life is going wrong (and then ending up becoming a techfest manager), to making study plans together in the H10 common room, I have amaze memories of us. I wish I had accompanied you to the courts this sem, and now we might never get the chance. ☹️ Keep smiling and stay in touch!

Ayushi Panghal : Hi Avani. I remember being so late in the case group game and worrying if I'll find someone to practice cases with in insti. Looking back, I can connect the dots and feel so grateful that I had you, through it all. You were so honest, dedicated and looked to learn something from everything. From practicing that first case together to day one, I always believed that you'll do great things. Also, I am so glad I had you to share all the torturous lectures that sem and do you remember that khosla quiz we winged? XD You hugging me after Auctus and feeling so happy will be my favourite way of remembering 'it was all worth it'. :) Always wishing you all the happiness, love always, ayu. <3

Kaustubh Harit : paribhhaaashaaaa...a journey well spent with you...lots of love
